[REDACTED]

Pakistan-India: The Pakistani government, which plans to raise the Kashmir dispute at the UN this month, has apparently seized on Indian troop movements associated with the recent Goa action to make fresh charges against India. The Pakistanis now claim that India is concentrating forces in a "threatening posture" along the border of West Pakistan, just south of Kashmir. India's First Armored Division moved into this area in mid-December to replace troops sent to Goa, and the Second Armored Brigade is now returning to this region after participating in the Goa invasion. President Ayub has asked that Pakistan's allies "who know that Pakistan is their open ally should also support us openly."

These charges appear to be part of an effort to attract international attention to the Kashmir dispute and to line up support for Pakistan's position. India has also raised the pitch of its propaganda attacks. The chief of the Indian Congress party on 4 January declared that all of India "is behind the government in liberating one-third of Kashmir under Pakistan's illegal occupation." These exchanges seem likely to reduce the possibility that useful talks can be held between representatives of the two countries in the near future.
